Area Overview

The former docklands area, made redundant by changes in shipping that have concentrated on down-river Tilbury, is rightly considered an exciting new area for living and working. With its much improved transport links provided by the Docklands Light Railway, its system of driverless trains weaves ingeniously between ultra-modern architecture and smartly converted old warehouses, rather like a sedate roller coaster. The development of new residential accommodation has been matched by the installation of a selection of over fifty bars, cafes and restaurants catering for the sophisticated to the more earthy.
